Company History

Opening its doors 17 years ago, Montana Foods was originally a small family operation. It has grown with an emphasis on providing a personal service.

The initial response from the local market was extremely positive, which encouraged Andrew Papas to continue manufacturing the selection of high quality gourmet products under the Chef's Delight brand.

Today, due to increased demand, Montana Foods has diversified into manufacturing a much larger range of gourmet products under three separate brands;

Each brand signifies a different product range adding to the company's strength and versatility in the gourmet food industry. Montana Foods reputation for quality and service are seen as the key elements for which the company has grown consistently year after year across Australia and around the world.

Montana Food's success has also been attributed to its focus of using only the freshest natural local ingredients, hand picked and delivered daily from farms across the country. All products are made to order, which offers our customers the longest possible shelf life.

The business is relocating to larger premises in order to keep up with the ever-increasing demand. With constant requests for even further varieties and extended lines, the new facilities offer the perfect solution for future product development.

Andrew Papas

Profile

The founder of Montana Foods, Andrew Papas, has always been very passionate about food & cooking. His love of food started at a young age in his mother's kitchen, learning to cook using fresh homegrown produce in traditional Mediterranean recipes. Infusing those recipes with Australian ingredients, he has created a range of unique and innovative products that appeal to a worldwide audience.

The ever increasing domestic and international demand, has created a need to out-source daily supply of only the freshest herbs, spices and vegetables from local and interstate farmers.

Being in daily contact with the growers, Andrew has developed very close relationships, which offers him the ability to receive certain ingredients even when they are not available on the open market.

Over years of international travel through South East Asia, experiencing new exotic flavours has been a passion for Andrew and has led him to develop a range of sauces, which capture the flavours of Asia. Today, he still travels regularly and continues to find new inspiration for future developments of the Montana Foods range.
